BRISBANE BOYS TAKES FIRST SUFFER INJURY FALL IN MILK AS CARS CRASH SALE CONTEST

Local Youths Collide With Palo Alto Couple On Bayshore Highway

Five persons are suffering from injuries received in a collision between cars driven by Alexander Rhodes, wealthy Palo Alto resident, and Karl Evans, 19, 150 Monterey street, Brisbane, on Bayshore highway, Saturday evening of last week.

Mrs. Rhodes sustained a cracked knee cap. Rhodes and Evans were cut and bruised. Two passengers in the Evans car—Forest Kelsey, 17, and Edward Unger, 19—both of Brisbane, suffered head injuries.

The accident occurred as the Evans automobile left a service station and ran head on into the Rhodes vehicle.

Golden Gate College To Present Ensemble Of Pasmore - David

Rarely performed solo and ensemble music by Mozart, Goosens, Dohnanyi and others for an unusual combination of violin, viola, 'cello, piano and harp will be heard when Ross McKee presents the Pasmore-David Ensemble at Golden Gate College in San Francisco this Friday evening, October 8 at 8:30.

Composed of four internationally known artist members of the music faculty at Golden Gate College, the Pasmore-David Ensemble has been hailed as one of the most unusual chamber music organizations in this country. Mary Pasmore, violin and viola, and Dorothy Pasmore, 'cello, are members of the San Francisco Symphony. With Suzanne Pasmore at the piano the sisters are widely known in America, Europe and Hawaii as the Pasmore Trio. Annie Louise David, endeared to audiences throughout United States, Canada, and Europe as the "Lady in Lavender," is an artist of the first rank and one of the most gracious personalities on the concert platform today; she has recently become further distinguished by her scholarly edition of "Twenty Pieces for the Harp," by J. S. Bach.

The concert will be followed by a candle light reception for guests and artists at the college.

Tickets are on sale at the college and at Sherman, Clay and Co. box offices.

Regular members of the Musical Society maintaining Schools of Music and Drama at Golden Gate College, will be invited guests.

Boys Take Part In Safety Program

Bayshore Traffic Boys journeyed to Redwood City, Wednesday of this week, to take part in a traffic safety program. Together with units from other schools in the county, they paraded around the court house before officials and spectators. After the parade they were entertained in the Sequoia Theater with safety motion pictures and singing and were treated with ice cream.

Boys from Bayshore, who are in the traffic patrol, are Vanston Shaw, Joseph Walling, Raymond Shiffman, John Barnes, Richard Wittmer, Gene Snow, Joe Edwards, Bob Grimes, Ernest Masry. They were accompanied by Chief of Police Williams, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Plum, and Mrs. Mardecich.

Federal Theater To Stage Comedy

Negotiations have been completed by the San Francisco Federal Theater Project for the production of Julian Thompson's uproarious comedy success, "The Warrior's Husband." The play has been put into rehearsal under the direction of Ralph Freud and the technical department is working on an elaborate scenic mounting.

"The Warrior's Husband" deals comically with the expedition of Hercules into the land of the Amazons and it is made into an amusing entertainment partly through the customs of those fabulous times when modesty, gentleness and docility were the qualities most admired in a man. The play calls for a cast of nearly 100.

Albert Witt Jr. Loses Ground
In Effort To Have Colma
Ordinance Changed

Chief Administrative Officer Cleary has notified the health committee of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors that he disapproves of a proposed modification to the milk ordinance which now bans milk pasteurized outside the city limits.

In the light of this announcement, former San Mateo County Supervisor Albert Witt Jr., Colma, has lost the first round in his fight to gain permission to sell milk prepared in San Mateo County within the borders of San Francisco.

ANNUAL DERBY OFFERS MANY CASH AWARDS

Many Fishermen To Revel At Event And Vie For Prizes
To Be Awarded

Thousands of anglers, hailing from all parts of California, are overhauling their tackle in preparation for the fifth annual Bass Derby at Rio Vista, the coming Sunday.

The forty-four awards total $1000. Following is the list of prizes: First, $300; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $75; fifth, $50; sixth, $30; seventh, $20; eighth to fifteenth, $10 each; sixteenth to forty-fourth, $5 each.

All awards will go to fishermen for heaviest bass taken within a well marked restricted area of the Sacramento River and Steamboat Slough on Derby Day. The fishing area will be in the Sacramento River from the Three Mills Slough bridge, south of Rio Vista, to Sycamore Park north of the city, and in Steamboat Slough from its confluence with the Sacramento River to a marker approximately one and a half miles above Swager's Resort. Fishing hours will be from 8:30 a. m. to 3 p. m.

All that is necessary to enter the contest is a California anglers license and a fishing card from the Derby committee. These cards may be had from Derby headquarters at Rio Vista Hotel, day or night. There is no charge of any kind.

Rio Vista townspeople are bent on making the 1937 Derby the biggest one to date. More than 8000 fishermen lined the banks of the Sacramento River to participate in the event last year.

DRIVE WILL CONTINUE

Mrs. Thelma Van Kirk, philanthropy chairman for the Parent Teacher Association, has decided to extend bundle drive one more week.

This, she feels sure, will enable all who wish to help in this drive to do so. If you have anything which can be used or made over send it to school by your children or get in touch with Mrs. Gertha McKinney, president, or Mrs. Van Kirk.

California Net Champs Feted

Passing through a triumphal arch of tennis racquets are pictured three of California's aces in the tennis world today. Helen Jacobs (left), Donald Budge and Alice Marble walked through the arch into the rotunda of the City Hall in San Francisco, where they were feted by civic leaders and dignitaries of the American Fellowship in recognition of their "promotion of international good will and sportsmanship." Helen Wills Moody, another California tennis star, was invited, but was unable to attend because of previous engagements.

Daly City Service Station Attendant Gives Up Eight Gallons To Bandits

Charged with attempted robbery, Winfield Radhahn, 27, San Francisco, admitted holding up Dave White at his home on Angus avenue, San Bruno, according to San Bruno police.

Radhahn's adventures started in San Francisco recently when he was picked up by Ray Favero, 433 Excelsior street, Balboa High School football player, and his friend, Dave Madrid, 71 Regent street, out for a ride in the car belonging to Favero's father.

According to the youths, Radhahn displayed a gun and forced them to drive out Mission street. At a service station at 6252 Mission street, Daly City, Radhahn pointed the weapon at the attendant, Dan Aguirre, 3155 San Jose avenue, and ordered him to put eight gallons of gasoline into the car's tank, Favero and Madrid told police.

An hour later, at 10:30 o'clock in San Bruno, Radhahn saw White at the door of his home. Radhahn left the car and the youths drove away. Madrid and Favero were soon afterwards apprehended by Sergeant Sunderland of Daly City Police at San Bruno, and—because their story seemed full of loop holes—they were later transferred to the county jail at Redwood City. Police believe them just as guilty as Radhahn, who soon joined them in the county "cooler."

Sage Of Atchison Dies After Stroke

Ed W. Howe, small town editor, philosopher and author was buried, Tuesday of this week, in Atchison, Kansas, where he founded his newspaper 59 years ago.

He died, Sunday, from the effects of a paralytic stroke, suffered five weeks before. He was 84.

The Iron Lung has been purchased outright for the Villa Sanitarium, through Joseph Sarto, superintendent.

Sarto was informed by telegram that the respirator will be shipped October 14. He says it will probably be in operation by November 1.

Students Are Guests of Board
Of Athletic Control—See
Oregon Play Bears

The University of California, following its usual custom of inviting high school seniors to visit the campus, selected Petaluma, Albany and Jefferson Union High Schools as the ones to be honored Saturday of last week.

The visiting students were shown about the building and grounds by Miss Carol Kennedy. The library and the engineering departments were especially appealing. An informative talk regarding college life, the activities and rules that govern students while at the University, proved enlightening.

The students were the guests of the Board of Athletic Control at the football game between the Golden Bears and Oregon State College.

Jefferson students who enjoyed the day's activities were Russell Anticoli, Rose Brosnan, Evelyn Clanton, Matilda Farbar, Chet Flansburg, Elio Fontana, Robert Funge, Angelina Gigli, Plinio Gressani, Raymond Kennedy, Lawrence Lemos, Eleanor Price, Peter Tolovi and Bernard Winn.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray were the sponsors for the event.

Duke And Duchess May Visit County

If, as London press dispatches state, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor visit in San Francisco in the next two months, it is very probable that they may be guests in San Mateo County, prior to leaving for Honolulu.

The former Wally Warfield Simpson is a friend of Mrs. Drew Childester, Peninsula socialite.

Jaycee And State Offer Two Events

San Mateo Junior College meets San Jose State in two events today on the home field.

In the morning Jaycee plays the State varsity soccer squad in the second intercollegiate game for the Mateans. In the afternoon the Junior College football eleven will play host to the State freshman squad in what will be the fourth game of the season for San Mateo. Last year the Jaycee won over the frosh by an one sided score.

NAVY WILL BE HOST TO PUBLIC IN GALA EVENT

Many Groups Will Unite To Entertain People—Ships
To Hold Open House

Preparations are actively under way for a gala celebration of Navy Day in San Francisco, October 27, according to the general chairman and executive chairman of the Navy Day Citizens Committee, appointed by the mayor.

Schools, churches, patriotic, veterans, fraternal and other organizations have been enlisted to stage demonstrations during the affair, which is so timed as to coincide with the birthday anniversary of the late president, Theodore Roosevelt.

It is planned to hold "open house" on all warships and the public will be given an opportunity to inspect the vessels from stem to stern. Special exercises are to be arranged on some of the ships for visitors.

In addition, there will be a Navy Day luncheon, patriotic demonstrations, public ceremonies and a formal naval ball in the evening under the auspices of the Navy League.

Dies Under Wheels Of Speeding Train

Falling under the wheels of a speeding train, just north of Millbrae, Bart Iridio, 43, Millbrae Park gardener, was instantly killed, early Tuesday morning of this week.

Iridio was the second person to die under a train in San Mateo County in four days. Albert Corey, San Mateo, was killed in the same manner, Saturday of last week.

Press Body Reiterates Plea
To Supervisors To Change
Meeting Times

San Mateo County newspaper publishers, convening in regular session at the Marine View Tavern in Moss Beach, Monday evening of this week, emphasized their plea to the Board of Supervisors to change the meeting date of the latter body to morning instead of afternoon in order that readers might have a report of the sessions the day they occur.

Should the board still be unwilling to change to morning sessions, the publishers urged them to meet Tuesday afternoon instead of Wednesday in order to give the weekly newspapers a better opportunity to give coverage to the sessions.

A joint meeting with the Santa Clara Press Association is planned for the next meeting, which will be held Monday, November 1, at Menlo Park. L. E. Harris, publisher of the Menlo Park Recorder, will be the host publisher.

Pupils To Attend Annual Convention

Members of Chapter 194 of the California Scholarship Federation of Jefferson Union High School will attend the annual convention at Commerce High School tomorrow. Helen Day, Lorraine Day, Alice Sanders, Lillian Cavagnaro and Frank Ford will be the delegates and Winola Ford will enter a three minute oratorical contest on the topic "What Cost Peace?"

The morning will open with a program by the Girls Dancing Club and later a speech will be delivered by the Deputy Superintendent of San Francisco Schools, J. C. McGlade, an authority on high school students and their interests. Four tours are planned for the afternoon, of which the guests may select one: Chinatown and Union Square, Aquarium and Japanese Tea Garden, Opera House and Veterans Memorial Art Exhibit and Fleishacker Zoo.

Officials Convene In County Audit

Results of the alleged sensational grand jury audit of county departments will be laid before county officials at a joint meeting which will be called by inquisitors as soon as possible.

This was the only announcement forthcoming from the jurors at the end of a long session, Tuesday evening of this week, in Judge Maxwell McNutt's courtroom.

The jury's official statement was: "We have received the complete audit of all the departments in the county, and have gone over it in detail."

"After discussing it, we are going to call in the Board of Supervisors, the county executive and all the heads of departments and go over it with them."

Hit High Brackets In Melon Contest

More than half a mile of sliced watermelon passed down 200 male throats at the sixty-second annual watermelon feed, recently held on the College of the Pacific campus by the Rho Lambda Phi fraternity.

Two tons of melons supplied the demand this year, and following the actual feed the surplus Klondikes were rolled into sorority houses in keeping with a fifty-year old tradition.

Held annually, the affair is open to all male students on the campus and each year draws a large crowd.

FINDS RARE TOME BY WALTER RALEIGH

A rare edition of Sir Walter Raleigh's "The History of the World" was discovered recently in the San Jose State College library by one of the librarians.

Written while he was imprisoned in the London Tower, the book includes ancient maps and a chronological of years according to the Julian period.

Hugh Bradley Says:

Let Alumni Rave—Here's an Idea of Ivy Grid Prospects

THIS properly should be written while the glee clubs from six major universities gather in the background to crown their demands for touchdowns. Letters from duly indignant alumni should be strewn all over the desk. The telephone should have been bristling for hours so that irate acquaintances could demand free ducats on the 59-yard line. A bevy of the world's greatest detectives should be near at hand to unravel the rules committee's newest tangle.

Nevertheless, while lacking such colorful inducements to get into the real spirit of the thing, duty must be done. Forthwith is presented one guy's notions as to how some of our better publicized eastern institutions of higher learning shape up for the 1937 football season. First bat, naturally, is given to the alma maters which yelp loudest about their own innate purity.

YALE—The Elis look better on paper right now than they did twelve months ago, but it is doubtful if they will be as good as in 1936 when they lost only to Dartmouth. Clint Frank, possibly the greatest all-around back to wear the Blue since Coy, heads an impressive list of ball carriers but there are too many danger spots up front. Men such as Merri Scott and Bob Beckwith, both underrated by observers last fall, will be sorely missed. Also scholastic shadows hover over several other dependables.

Dick Harlow's System Clicks at Harvard

HARVARD—Dick Harlow's hard hitting system was working last November almost as well as it did during his years at Western Maryland. Most of those heroes, who scared Yale so badly, are back. Headed by Alex Kerkovian, a bruising Armenian giant who brings fond memories of Pennock, Hardy and other Crimson tackle greats, the line should be the best in years. Tom Healey, rugged sophomore son of a Worcester police captain, is almost as good a tackle as Kerkovian. Don Daughters is an impressive end. In the backfield there is the famous passing combination of Art Oakes and tiny Bob Stuart to go along with the blocking of Chief Boston and the line plunging Vernon Struck. Together with Torbet MacDonald, soph triple threat from Andover who is claimed as the best Harvard back since Crickard, they may provide the Crimson with its ardently craved Big Three title.

PRINCETON—Jack White, tops as a ball carrier but weak defensively, and Charley Toll, a good but not great tackle, are the only survivors from Crisler's mighty 1935 team. This year, with the Tigers still sore over what happened to the well ballyhooped veterans in 1936, anything may happen. On paper, the prospects are not too impressive but if bald Tad Wieman does his usually high class job on a green soph line it might be well for Yale to get an alibi in working order early.

PENN—Backs such as Elverson, Warwick, Kurlish and Murray are replaced no more quickly than are such fine centers as Jim Hauze. Nevertheless, the red helmeted Walter Shinn heads a strong front line and it may be difficult to flag such impressive soph backs as Jim Connell and Bill Koepsell. On the whole a good team, although scarcely as good as a year ago.

DARTMOUTH—Boys to watch here are Merrill Davis and Larry Hull, a great pair of ends and Bob McLeod, a superior ball carrier. They fit well into the system Earl Blaik finally has established on a firm basis at Hanover and it may be they can carry the team until raw recruits get the feel of things. Not too much optimism among Green alumni, though. You can't lose men such as Handrahan, Cammerer and Mutt Ray and not feel it.

COLUMBIA—A stride or two ahead of last year's pace. Lou Little is cheerful, as he very well might be, when he looks at his big squad so well equipped with ends and backs. Probably not another Rose Bowl year but it should be Sid Luckman's time to go places. Also watch Frank Sposato, sophomore, converted from center to quarterback to replace George Furey.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

KEEP an eye on Christensen, young Minnesota fullback. They say he is the best yet . . . Burns Marvil, Syracuse soph, is a brother of the old Northwestern All-America end. The kid is a whale of a fullback and an illustrator of some talent, too. He makes his way by dishwashing in the university dining room . . . Vannie Albanese, Syracuse fullback star of last fall and now with Brooklyn's pro football Dodgers, once gained 79 yards on sixteen straight plunges through the middle of a rugged Penn State line. Stopped on the two-yard mark he came back a few seconds later to take a short pass and run 45 yards for the winning touchdown just as the game ended. He never called for a time out during his three varsity seasons, incidentally.

General John J. Phelan was technically right when he assured Bob Pastor that when Max Baer appeared for a license, Commissioner Bill Brown did not call Max a bum. What Ballyhoo Bill called the former champion was "Two-Bums," as reported by every paper in the city . . . All of which probably has nothing to do with the fact that, now that Uncle Mike Jacobs wants such a show, it is six, two and even the State Athletic commission sanctions a Braddock-Baer affair.

Burleigh Grimes believes that horseback riding is one of the best ways for a pitcher to keep in condition . . . John Arnold Heydler, former president of the National league, has abandoned golf as a summer pastime. Says swimming is more fun and keeps him in better shape . . . Four National league clubs admit they're willing to deal for Buddy Hassett when the Dodgers put him on the block this winter . . . Boys who run errands around National league clubhouses say that the Giants are the best tipsters. Cubs used to be good but a change has come over them this season . . . At least Hornsby's telephone booth was in the grand stand. In Washington, the boys who want to slap a deuce on Honey Chile in the fifth at Aqueduct simply use the phone almost behind the Senators' dugout.

There's a kid named Sid Martin at West Point (the football coaches either are keeping him under cover or are too much entangled in red tape to note him) who might become another Monk Meyer if given proper opportunity . . . Those Sterns twins at Williams also are worth a football writer's tale . . . Iowa, minus Coach Ossie Solem's leadership, will be weaker this year although this Tubbs from Miami is a good man . . . Ohio State, better than usual due to the lack of pre-season press raves, will be tough to take in spite of the loss of Jumping Joe Williams, who flunked out of college . . . Michigan and Purdue will be good, maybe better than that.

Farr Should Clean Another 50 G's

TOMMY FARR should clear another 50 G's before he sails for England in December . . . Recent reports that Newark Promoter Babe Culnan would manage him are all wrong, according to Farr. He says Manager Ted Broadbribb will receive his cut on all purses until March when their contract expires . . . "Broadbribb and I are in the best of health," is the British empire champ's only other comment on the situation . . . Quentin Reynolds predicts in Collier's that Bob Pastor will win the heavyweight championship. Says the former N. Y. U. boy has convinced him.

Gents who knew him well in his boxing commission days say that Jim Farley will resign as Postmaster General. They add that he has spent 111 nights on the train during the past year, wants to devote more time to his New York alliances and will head a major auto company . . . The favorite sport of Dodo Bundy, who eliminated Alice Marble in the women's national tennis tourney, is swimming. She's very good at it, too . . . Jockey Silvio Coucci, who hung up his tack at Aqueduct, may ride abroad . . . A star Yankee pitcher and one of the team's veteran infielders haven't spoken to one another all season.

Texas Christian has the biggest line in its history. Two young men who hope to be pro football Giants next year, should be eyed carefully. They are Ki Aldrich, the giant center who made Horned Frog rosters forget all about Darrell Lester, and I. B.—That's what he's called—Hale, a 240-pound tackle . . . Will Walls, the grand new Giant end, never spoke a word until he was eight years old. His mother and father were both deaf mutes. Tillie Manton, perhaps the most underrated player in pro football, landed Walls for Coach Steve Owen. Manton, by the way, is scouting Fordham for T. C. U. . . Rigan McKinney, back from a major cruise, may resume his steeplechase riding at Belmont Park . . . Watch Bob Mautner, Holy Cross captain and center, this fall. This human fire plug will give Fordham's Wolfe a real run for all-Eastern pivot honors . . . Burleigh Grimes says that, aside from being one of the greatest catchers of all time, Jimmy Wilson was the best catcher ever to handle his spitballs.

IT'S TIME FOR YOUR RED FLANNELS!

With Old Man Winter Wetting His Chilly Whistle, Americans Get Ready to Spend $2,000,000,000 Keeping Warm.

Keeping warm in winter has its problems for the poor fellow in the cartoon, who, like 12,000 other Americans, wears red flannels in the winter. The airlines have their warmth problem licked, for the same mobile unit (left) which pumps cold air into the planes in summer fills them with warm air in winter; after they take off, a steam heating unit goes into operation. Some scientists predict that one day most of our heat will come from the sun via the solar machine, such as Dr. C. G. Abbot, of the Smithsonian Institution, is demonstrating (right).

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

SHORTS may come and undershirts may go, but with the first twinge of frosty weather there are still 12,000 men in the United States who are walking up to store counters and demanding red flannel underwear, adding one hundred thousand dollars to the $2,000,000,000 fund which this country spends every year in the business of keeping warm.

Gone, however, are the days when digging ear-muffs out of a trunk in the attic and chopping enough stove wood to fill the back yard constituted the average man's preparations for the winter months. Then he was not troubled with the knowledge that has now come to light through medical research that the temperature of the human body can not drop more than five degrees without causing death in most cases.

"Getting hot"—1937 style—involves not only coal miners and wood choppers, but scientists delving into the mysteries of new kinds of heat, architects poring over blueprints for automatically heated homes, and engineers supervising the operation of huge machines that work with machine-gun rapidity, stamping out the parts for boilers, burners and electric stoves.

In the first place, there is the matter of supplying enough fuel to heat the 12,000,000 homes and 2,000,000 commercial structures that require artificial heat when the mercury slides down towards the freezing point.

$400,000,000 for Coal.

All during the summer and fall, more than 600,000 men have been working with pick and shovel in mines throughout the country, piling up mountains of coal for protection against the arctic blasts to come.

Coal dealers estimate that the coal bought for heating purposes is shoveled into furnaces during the winter months, bringing the United States' coal bill for this season of the year alone to about $400,000,000. In the oil and gas fields of Oklahoma, Texas, California and Pennsylvania, an army of 100,000 laborers is kept busy extracting gas and fuel oil to aid in the business of keeping warm. So rapidly has the heating of houses and buildings with fuel oil and gas increased in the past few years, that it is estimated 35,000,000 barrels of fuel oil will be needed this winter to keep modern furnaces roaring, and the bill will reach the staggering total of more than $150,000,000.

Shivering house owners will dig down into their pockets for another $350,000,000 for gas, and additional thousands of dollars for electricity to run the most modern of all heating equipment.

Such tremendous expenditures for fuel were unheard of a generation or two ago, and in fact the modern trend towards automatic heating which is now sweeping the country, and piling up huge fuel and equipment bills, did not begin in earnest until after the World war.

The Two Kinds of Heat.

Almost all the modern improvements in heating equipment which make life not only possible but comfortable in the temperate zone, stem from experiments conducted not by isolated research experts, but by scientists working in the laboratories of one of the country's largest electrical companies that present day Americans are indebted for improvements that have come from the amazing discovery that there are essentially two kinds of heat: radiant and convected.

Convected heat—the kind given off by open fires and hot air furnaces—produces warmth by heating the air. On the other hand, it was found that radiant heat consists of rays which warm the body without necessarily having much effect on the surrounding air.

As the result of this research, and investigations by scientists connected with other industrial concerns, engineers have found the answer to widely-varying problems in heating brought about by changed conditions of modern living. They have conquered the difficulties of installing 65 miles of steam conduits beneath the swarming arteries of traffic in New York to pipe warmth from central heating plants to 2,000 office and residence buildings. On the opposite end of the scale is the successful installation of a separate heating system in a bird house.

Air-Conditioned Bird House.

The steam-heated bird house, probably the only one in existence, is the property of a California woman. In training canaries to sing, she found it most effective to keep them shut up in large outdoor houses, completely insulated against outside noises so that the birds would hear nothing but the sound of phonograph records being played. This brought on the problem of air-conditioning the bird house, and a complete ventilating and steam heating system was installed, with steam heat pipes enclosed in the walls.

Managers of the nation's transcontinental airways, faced with the difficulties of passenger comfort on winter flights, took their problem to heating engineers, who have developed a unique system for warming the huge passenger planes that now roar across the sky trails.

As the result of scientific research and experiments, cross-country planes this winter will be warmed by "flying steam heat," designed to maintain a temperature in the cabins of at least 70 degrees even during the coldest weather. The flying heaters, which weigh only 140 pounds, produce enough steam to heat a five-room house on the ground. Using only eight quarts of water, the miniature boilers are heated by exhaust gases from the engines, and the temperature is regulated either by thermostats, or by controls in the pilot's compartment. Provision is made for a complete change of air in the transport planes every four minutes, so that the atmosphere does not become "stuffy."

Thawing Out Iron Ore.

Before the take-off of each flight, and before the exhaust from the engines has had a chance to start the steam heater in operation, the interiors of the huge planes are warmed by special mobile heating units, maintained at the airports. These units, mounted on small trucks, pump warmed air into the cabins, thus bringing the temperature to the desired level before passengers enter the ship.

Not only is human comfort in the wintertime dependent on scientific developments, but the business life of the nation as well, for industrial schedules must be maintained despite weather conditions. Here again, research experts in one industry came to the rescue of another when engineers of the B. F. Goodrich company solved a stubborn problem at the root of all industry by making it possible to ship iron ore in zero weather from the Great Lakes district.

On the shores of Lake Superior, where snow and ice close in while the big ore boats are still running, carloads of wet iron ore freeze into solid chunks before they can be unloaded. To meet this emergency, the engineers devised a hose of specially compounded rubber through which super-heated steam is pumped into the cars, effectively thawing out the ore so that it can be handled quickly and efficiently and shipped to the steel mills as the "food" to keep industry humming.

While the ravenous demands of the steel mills are being satisfied, heating engineers have also had the problem of keeping food for the dinner tables moving to the markets in winter.

Tropical fruits, for instance, are brought into this country green, and then ripened in specially constructed heating rooms. Bananas are put in rooms to ripen, with the temperature carefully regulated between 56 and 70 degrees. By controlling the temperature of the ripening rooms, marketers can delay or hasten the ripening process and so adjust the supply of bananas to reach consumers in a steady stream. Grapefruit is ripened in specially-heated rooms at a temperature of 75 degrees and "air-conditioned lemons" are kept at a temperature of from 54 to 59 degrees until they are ready to be sold to the public.

Despite the emphasis on heat for food, industries and homes, the business of keeping warm has as one of the most troublesome problems the difficulty of keeping a nation comfortable during the winter, while reducing fire hazards to the lowest possible point. The extent to which this is being accomplished can be easily seen from the fact that while the volume of business increased 34 per cent in the automatic heating industry from 1935 to 1936, fire losses increased only 11.9 per cent.

Fire Losses Decrease.

According to statistics compiled by the authoritative Heating and Ventilating magazine, the volume of business in the automatic heating industry has jumped more than 250 per cent in the past five years. In 1932, it is estimated that the sale of automatic heating equipment amounted to only $41,711,000. By 1936 this figure had increased to $108,990,000.

Meanwhile, fire losses in the United States in 1936 totaled $263,259,746, according to estimates of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, showing a decrease of 34 per cent from the 1932 figure of $400,859,000.

Nevertheless, there are still enough defective chimneys and flues left in the country so that it is estimated that about $10,000,000 worth of property will go up in smoke this coming winter, and a similar amount will be lost because of imperfect stoves, furnaces and boilers.

As scientists attack this problem, as well as others, there is a hint that the future might see great changes not only in the type of heaters used, but in the kind of fuel, for recent experiments point to a time when we may get all or most of our heat from the sun.

Dr. C. G. Abbot, head of the Smithsonian Institution, has recently developed a solar heater that is the most efficient yet produced. Utilizing the hot rays of the sun, reflected by a bright metal sheet, he has succeeded in heating a black liquid called aroclor to a temperature at which it can be used for turning water into steam. Experts declare that solar rays available for heat are at least 1,000 times as powerful as all the coal, oil and hydro-electric power now used. Although the conversion of sun rays into heat is still too costly to compete with the cheaper and better known fuels, scientists say the day may come when these are all exhausted, and when we will turn to the sun for heat and power, and the business of keeping warm will literally be done with mirrors.

Bedtime Story for Children

JUMPER TELLS PETER WHO THE STRANGER IS

PETER RABBIT could hardly believe what he had seen—the big black stranger, with the great terrible claws, backing away from Jimmy Skunk, and Jimmy acting just as if he were in the habit of meeting this stranger every day and making him get out of his way. And yet he knew that Jimmy never had seen him before. Peter always had had a great deal of respect for Jimmy Skunk. He knew that Jimmy just laughed at Reddy Fox, although Reddy is ever so much bigger than he, and he knew that Bowser the Hound always turned aside if he happened to meet Jimmy. But he really had not thought that Jimmy would dare to treat this great stranger so, and if he hadn't seen it himself he wouldn't have believed it because—well, because he couldn't have believed it.

"Supposing You Tell Me Who You've Seen," Said He, Quite as if He Had No Particular Interest in the Matter.

Peter was full of wonder and excitement as he hurried away to tell all whom he should meet what he had seen. He didn't know who the stranger was. Never had he seen anyone like him in the Green Forest. The very thought of him made Peter shake with fright, even if Jimmy Skunk should say that there was nothing to be afraid of, and Peter knew that this is just what Jimmy would say when he met him. Presently as he hurried, lipperty-lipperty-lip, through the Green Forest he met his cousin, Jumper the Hare.

"Oh, Jumper! Cousin Jumper! I've seen him!" cried Peter just as soon as he was near enough to make himself heard.

Jumper sat up and looked at Peter curiously. "Supposing you tell me whom you've seen," said he quite as if he had no particular interest in the matter.

"Why, the stranger! The great big stranger who made those tracks in the snow I told you about and whom you tried to find and couldn't. I saw him just a few minutes ago! Who do you suppose he is, and do you suppose he has come to the Green Forest to stay?" cried Peter, talking so fast that the words just tumbled out.

"How should I know?" replied Jumper the Hare. "Suppose you tell me something about him. What does he look like?"

"Well, he's big," began Peter. "He's bigger than anyone else in the Green Forest. Why, he's as big as Farmer Brown's boy! He wears a black fur coat. He stands on two legs and he walks on four legs, and he hasn't any tail."

Jumper yawned just as if he weren't the least bit interested. I've heard all that before from Sammy Jay," said he.

"And don't you believe it?" cried Peter.

Jumper the Hare smiled at Peter, and Peter knew right away by that smile that his big cousin had been teasing him. "Yes," said he, "I believe it because—well, because I have seen him myself."

"You have?" cried Peter, "and do you really know who he is?"

Jumper nodded. "Yes," said he, "he's an old acquaintance of mine."

"Who?" demanded Peter, his eyes popping out with excitement.

"Tell me quick, who is he?"

"He's someone I used to know when I lived in the Great Woods before I came to live in the Green Forest on the edge of the Green Meadows," replied Jumper, speaking so slowly that Peter thought he would never get it out.

"But what's his name? Do tell me his name, Cousin Jumper," implored Peter.

"His name," replied Jumper slowly, very slowly, while Peter held his breath and leaned forward with eyes and ears and mouth wide open. "His name is—"

"Is what?" cried Peter.

"Is Buster Bear," replied Jumper the Hare.

IMPORTANCE OF WATER TO BODY

Look to Source of Supply When Choosing a Home.

By EDITH M. BARBER

THE most important material which we take into our bodies through the mouth is completely lacking in food value! This sounds like a contradictory statement. It is, however, water which we are describing in these terms. As has been proven many times, man can live much longer without food than he can without drink, which he must have, not only to satisfy his thirst craving, but for use in every body process.

The first qualifications in choosing a place of residence is a liberal and sure water supply. Those of us who live in cities and suburbs take this for granted. This is not the case, however, in the country. It was brought to my attention in Maine when a new well was necessary. Captain Sinnott was called upon to locate the well on one of the veins of water which run at intervals through the region. He came armed with a crocheted willow twig, which, believe it or not, turned toward the ground when it found running water. Of course, it would not be so obliging for everyone, although we were all allowed to try our hand at divining. One or two of us actually found that we had the power, although we were scientific scoffers.

To go back to the importance of water which too often we neglect to drink in the proper quantity. At least eight glasses should be taken daily if our body machinery is to be supplied with amounts which will enable it to run efficiently. Some of this may be taken at meals if it is drunk after food has been chewed and swallowed. The rest may be taken between meals. Part of the supply may of course be in the form of any sort of liquid beverage.

FIRST-AID TO AILING HOUSE

DOUBLE WINDOWS FOR CASEMENTS

DURING the warm times of year, casement windows that swing outward are certainly attractive. This is not only for appearance, but for the full ventilation that comes with the opening of an entire window space. In winter, however, the situation is reversed. Out-swinging casement windows are more likely to leak than is the case with windows of other kinds. Also, the ordinary form of double window cannot be used.

When there are two or more casement windows in a room, it is unusual for more than one to be opened during bitter weather. This being so, all of the windows but one can be kept closed, and ordinary double windows put on outside. For the one window that is to be opened, a removable double window can be attached inside. If the casement is provided with inside insect screens on hinges, the screens can be replaced with glass. Another possibility is a sheet of plate glass covering the entire opening, set in a frame of wood molding, fitted to the inside of the window frame. The molding should have good-sized handles attached to it, so that it can be easily moved, and when in place, it is held by simple bolts or turn-bolts.

Double windows raise the temperature of a room by many degrees. There is far less chilling of the space near a window, and drafts in the room are greatly cut down.

San Jose.—Smoking by coeds was given official sanction on the San Jose College campus for the first time with the opening of the new student union building here. Monterey Cypress Threatened
San Francisco.—Complete extinction of the world famous California cypress due to an incurable fungus is a possibility cited by the federal forest service. Known to have existed for the last ten years, the fungus has made a steady invasion despite the defense set up by foresters and the CCC. If the fungus is discovered in its early stages, surgery may halt its spread. But if the infection is well advanced, the only recourse is to cut down the tree to prevent spread of the disease to other trees. The fungus has made serious progress on the Monterey Peninsula, the only place where the California cypress is native, and has spread northward almost to San Francisco. Forest service officials said all of the cypress groves are doomed unless the spread of the disease is checked.

ROCKAWAY BEACH PEDRO VALLEY

By C. H. T.

A rainy Saturday morning discouraged visitors to the beaches, but those who braved the clouds and showers, found the day clearing to a fine afternoon, while Sunday brought a radiant week end. Plenty of good fishing at Shelter Cove, and reports of some excellent catches, a crowded beach and good swimming. The artistic sign just off the new highway this side of the Pedro Mountain ascent brought a number of cars through Pedro to "look for the Rock."

Bob Scott's mother, who has been visiting Rockaway for the past few weeks, plans to leave for her home near Kansas City in the near future. She is over eighty, and this is her fourth trip to the coast to see her son, Bob, and her grandchildren, June and brother. They say Bob hasn't been "back home" for thirty years and more. The old lady is a welcome guest, and June says she is "full of zip and go."

Hector Martin was busy last Sunday, making the boxes for the new Pedro postoffice. The postoffice was promised to us "pronto" by the Improvement Association if we'd consent to change the name from Point San Pedro (as the government geodetic maps have it) to Pedro Valley. Somehow, the change hasn't seemed to hasten the coming of the postoffice. Such things seem to be slow. But with Hector making the boxes we begin to expect that post-office!

Pedro regrets losing the Clyde Garners, the Karl Strutzes and the David Clarks. These popular young people have gone to San Francisco for the winter, but they plan to return in the spring.

Roy Schwartz and his wife are accomplishing remarkable things in the building of their summer home. They are using novel ideas, and their place will be original in effect, and truly comfortable, beside having one of the most scenic outlooks in this locality.

Mrs. Nora Christen entertained a group of friends at a Spanish dinner, served at her Pedro home, recently.

The Fenlons have a new car. Mrs. Beeler has had a ride in it. She pronounces the car "absolutely perfect."

The second unit of the Maracci beach concession is to be started sometime within the next two weeks. Reports state that the place will be ready for opening in early spring. Already the Pedro Valley beach looks less lonely at the far end, with the garage almost finished, and the wide space levelled for the other constructions.

An eight-pound son was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Roddy last Sunday, in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Haugaard of Shelter Cove, entertained a birthday guest at dinner last Monday.

A confirmation class numbering one hundred members, included Georgine del Rosso, Annabelle Trogia, Nathan Bloom and Rico Romano, of Rockaway and Pedro, in a recent ceremony that was solemnized by Archbishop Mitty of San Francisco, at the Colma Catholic Church.

Mrs. Waldorf's bright garden, near the top of the hill on Grande avenue, Pedro, is one of the charming sights of the Terrace. The Bryant roses are "show roses," and remarkable for color, form and enormous size.

Last week's heavy all-night rainstorm delayed the surfacing of the Rockaway-Pedro highway, but we understand the work of macadamizing will soon be completed. The road up Grande avenue is in need of repairs before the winter season sets in, and the powers that be have been asked for help in the matter.

The Elwood MacPhees are occupying the picturesque summer home on Clifton avenue during the autumn season, commuting to the city every

Music Project Has Postponed Concert

Because of the difficulty and expense involved in 'striking the set' (theatrically speaking) of the present production "Beyond The Horizon" playing at the Alcazar Theater, the Music Project found it necessary to cancel the concert scheduled for October 11, which was to have presented to San Francisco audiences for the first time in a number of years, with Robert Pollak as the guest conductor, and Viska Krokowski, violinist, as soloist. This concert has been postponed until November 22, the week following the closing of the San Francisco Opera season.

A long season of six months with concerts every week by the Federal Music Project terminated with the Brico concert last Tuesday evening at the Veterans Auditorium. Until the Opera and the San Francisco Symphony season are finished, no regular symphonic series of Federal Music will be given. With the exception of a single concert here and there, the Federal Music Project will devote its time and confine its activities to serving the different public schools with its fine music, and concentrating on its educational outlets. This is indirect line and in keeping with the policy of the Federal Music Project. High Schools and Junior High Schools have been notified that where the auditorium permits, they may have a limited number of symphonic concerts. The immediate response by phone and letter attest to the significant success obtained last year, and the popularity of music in the schools.

Growing in size and importance is the Federal School located at 400 Steiner street teaching violin, piano, voice, harmony and wind instruments to those underprivileged groups who find it impossible to receive this type of education any place else. The school is under the direction of Erich Weiler. He has as his assistant Tomo Yagodka, and a large staff of accredited teachers.

The Bay Region Federal Symphony is to play regularly in the auditorium at Oakland, where there is no symphonic or Operatic season other than Federal Music. From now on for a number of months the San Francisco concerts will be announced not as a series but as individual performances.

PREVENTORIUM FALLS SHORT OF GOAL SET

Campaign Will Be Continued Indefinitely In County Says President

Continuation of the funds campaign by the San Mateo Preventorium for an indefinite period was announced this week by the president.

Only $7,750.75 of the goal of $10,000 was raised by the drive just concluded, according to officials. Added to the $2000 in subscriptions, obtained last August, this gives the Preventorium but $7,750.75 to conduct its affairs for a year.

Cost of operating the Preventorium a year is $12,000 or more. Thus, while the campaign is officially over, colonels in the drive have agreed to continue contacting people asking their support to the Preventorium, in order that it may continue to remain open.

WHEEL ALIGNMENT

Wheel alignment is affected by air pressure in front tires. Under-inflated front tires have a larger area of contact with the roadbed, causing slight changes in the camber and "toe-in" of the wheels.

A car is also more difficult to control when the front tires are soft. Another effect is that under-inflated tires wear out nearly twice as fast as those which are kept at the proper pressure.

Courtesy Urged To Visiting Motorist

Make the visiting motorist traveling in California feel that he is a welcome and appreciated guest, entitled to every courtesy and consideration.

The importance of such a spirit among resident motorists toward the motorist with out-of-state license plates on his car is stressed in a statement, issued recently.

Good motoring manners as well as a proper regard for the business value of California's immense and growing motor tourist travel trade require an attitude of hospitable courtesy toward "the stranger within our gates," it is declared.

"While displays of discourtesy on the highway are always a thing to be avoided," the statement continued, "they are particularly deplorable when the display of bad motoring manners is directed toward a visiting motorist."

"Courtesy is an essential part of hospitality and the California motorist who fails to heed that fact performs a distinct disservice to his state."

"A too rigid insistence as to right of way, unnecessary and irritable blasts of the horn, and other failures of courtesy are bad enough when another home state motorist is involved."

"But when they are directed toward a motorist with out-of-state license plates on his car they very definitely jeopardize California's reputation for hospitality. Visitors are particularly sensitive to the treatment they receive. They eagerly appreciate courtesy, but they also resent and bitterly remember the lack of it."

"Every California motorist can help his state by scrupulous courtesy toward our motoring visitors."

"Craig's Wife," by George Kelly, has been selected as the term play; tryouts are being completed and work has started to stage the drama in November.

Eighty-four students have been named to the college honor society as a result of fine class work during the spring term.

The college is planning to send a special train load of rooters to the Modesto football game, October 22. Work is already under way on the college bonfire and rally that will precede the battle with San Francisco Junior College, November 6.

Office figures show that San Mateo College now has 1011 students enrolled for the fall semester. Of the number, 545 are men and 466 are coeds. More students are enrolling daily, so that there will be about 1200 for the term.

BAYSHORE NEWS

The Bayshore P. T. A. held its first hot dog sale of the year under the direction of Mesdames Percival and Mangels. Hot dogs and cup cakes were sold to the children and an addition of apple pie and coffee was added to the menu for the parents and teachers who attended. A complete sell-out was reported.

We wish to make a correction of an item which appeared in last week's edition of this paper. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Taylor celebrated their twenty-first wedding anniversary instead of the twelfth.

The Bayshore Voters League will hold a Halloween costume ball on Saturday evening, October 30, in their hall. A prize of $5 will be given to the best costumed couple. Mr. Jack Lawson heads the committee in charge of arrangements.

Ladies of the League will hold a whist, October 15. A nice group of prizes will be given away and score cards will be 25 cents.

The City Council meeting Tuesday evening of this week, granted an extension of five years to the Town and Country Kennel Club on its permit to operate in Bayshore. Application was formally made to the council by P. P. O'Connor. Expressions of confidence both in the past and future in performance of conditions of the contract by the owners of the club were given by all members of the council. The club will close its doors tonight on a very successful fall meet.

The Board of Fire Commissioners of the Bayshore Fire District will meet Monday evening of next week, in regular session. Meeting date was changed in order to enable members of the Fire Department, who are working at the track, to attend.

Board of Directors of the Diamond Public Utility District are happy to announce that they were able to pay in full the balance on the old water bill owing to the San Francisco Water Department, at their meeting, Tuesday evening of last week. The board now hopes to pay off attorney fees which are still against the district. In addition to paying the bills, the board has been able to make a substantial reduction in water rates on McDonald avenue.

Parent Teachers Enjoy Luncheon

Mrs. Eva Page and Mrs. Marge Woodside were hostesses to the members of the executive board of the Jefferson Union High School P. T. A., at the latter's home on Bruno avenue, Wednesday of this week. A tempting luncheon was served, followed by a business meeting and social afternoon. Those present were Mesdames Stella Jensen, T. Bentley, Lillian Smith, Mary Crane, Edith Barker, Pearl Jones, Lillian Cavagnaro and H. Remington, and Mr. and Mrs. James Ferguson and George Woodside.

CORONER HOLDS TWO INQUESTS IN DALY CITY

Ascertain Causes For Violent Deaths Which Occurred Recently In San Mateo County

The two inquests scheduled to be held in Daly City, Thursday of last week, were postponed by San Mateo County Coroner William Crosby until Tuesday morning of this week. Both were conducted by the coroner at the W. C. Lasswell & Co. mortuary establishment at 10:30 o'clock that day.

In the case of Charles Doherty, 37, a San Francisco engineer residing at 66 Danton street, it was decided death resulted from accidental drowning on Sunday, September 26, at Pedro Valley Beach.

In the case of Harry Lumsden, 52, of Los Olivos avenue, death was attributed to hemorrhage caused by a laceration of the throat, self-inflicted. Lumsden was a native of Kirkaldy, Scotland.

Daly City Team Beaten In Tenth

The Municipal Railway boys took the Daly City ball tossers for a ride when the two contingents clashed in a grim, hard fought battle on the Jefferson Union High School diamond, Sunday of last week.

Deadlocked at nothing to nothing at the end of the ninth inning, the motormen decided the issue in the tenth when they scored two markers to win the first league game of Recreation A League schedule.

INDIANS LOSE INITIAL GAME

Local Boys Are Scalped By Burlingame Panthers In Hard Fought Battle

Beginning P. A. L. competition this season, the Jefferson Indians clashed with Burlingame last week on their home field.

Burlingame kicked off to the Indians, who carried the ball down to their 40 yard line. Here the Indians took to the air lanes, but didn't get very far before Burlingame snagged one of their passes.

Burlingame tried to crash through the Jefferson line, but could make no headway until the Indian reserves were placed in the game; then the Burlingame Panthers marched through the line for a full 30 yards to a scoring position. Here the Burlingame fullback plowed through the center of the line to score the winning goal for the Panthers.

Exceptional in this game was the fine running done by Compagno and Stevens, a newcomer from Mission High, assisted by some wonderful blocking by Wright.

FOR BETTER BISCUITS

Recent laboratory tests bear out the old-fashioned cooking rule that biscuit dough should be handled lightly to make tender biscuits.

New Law Aimed At Driveway Parking

Motorists who park in front of other people's driveways and block the means of getting a car into or out of the premises violate a law which has been on the statute books for some time. But at the last session of the Legislature a change was made in the law to provide it with additional "teeth." It pointed out.

This change, now in effect, gives full legal authority to police officers to remove cars found parked in front of driveways (except, of course, cars belonging to occupants of the premises) to the nearest garage or other place of safety.

Charges incurred for thus towing away and storing cars blocking the entrance to driveways will be imposed upon the owner of the illegally parked car.

THE HARD PART

Someone wrote to Mark Lemon and asked for instruction in the writing of funny paragraphs.

Lemon replied: "It is not at all hard to write funny paragraphs. All you have to do is to procure a pen, some paper and ink, and then sit down and write them as they occur to you. It is not the writing, but the occurring that is hard."—Edinburgh Dispatch.

OBSERVATION OF VARIOUS THINGS IN OUR CAPITAL

Definition Of "Freedom Of The Press" And Explanation Therefor Stated In Detail

(By Hart Goodrich)

Off and on we hear the cry of curbing the freedom of the press and the much louder answering cry, "No!" Efforts to curb the press have been pretty amateurish and clumsy in this country, if we are to judge these attempts by foreign standards. Cedric Larson, of the staff of the Library of Congress, has just published in Princeton University's Public Opinion Quarterly a detailed study, based on documents difficult to obtain elsewhere, of just how Adolph Hitler managed to remove the obstacle of an independent press in Germany.

The formula he used is so basic that it can be applied anywhere in the world and, unfortunately, is applied in countries where dictatorships flourish.

1. Newspapers should print nothing but the truth. This is almost universally admitted. It is doubtful if even the sometimes bothersome Constitution guarantees to anybody unrestricted freedom to lie.

2. Enact laws prohibiting publication of falsehoods.

3. Define truth according to your own ideas.

4. Shoot or throw into jail anybody who prints anything that deviates from truth.

The whole formula hinges on the third step—the dictator's definition of truth.

Hitler realizes the power of the press and in his famous book, "Mein Kampf," he says newspaper readers are divided into three classes:

First, the overwhelming majority who believe everything they read in the papers.

Second, the small minority who believe nothing they read in the papers for no better reasons than those for which their neighbors believe everything.

Third, the still smaller minority who use their own judgment on what to believe and what not to believe.

The first class, Hitler believes, should be taught nothing but what the state wishes the people to believe. The second, a small minority, can be dealt with easily, as can the third class, which either finds itself before the firing squad or in "concentration" camps.

All journalists must have a license as dentists, doctors and lawyers are required to have in the United States. The license may be revoked at any time and the journalist is subject to heavy fines and imprisonment if he writes anything remotely detrimental to the Nazi movement.

It should be with a great sense of gratitude that we celebrate Newspaper Week in this free land. We may print the truth—what we, ourselves, honestly, believe to be the truth—not the view of others on the subject.

So long as newspapers are upheld in the right to express all the details of skulduggery in high places, including the government "high finance," labor unions and "big business," the establishment of an American dictatorship is practically impossible.

The Curse of Progress

Anything to Oblige
A young subaltern joined a guards depot, his upper lip as yet unadorned with even the suspicion of down. The adjutant sent for him.
"You must grow a mustache."
"Yes, sir."
"And not one of those Chaplin affairs—a proper mustache."
"Yes, sir."
The interview was finished, but the subaltern did not move, so the adjutant asked: "Well, what more do you want?"
"Any particular color, sir?"

Knows His Stuff
After the tiff she calmed down a bit.
"But how can you love me, George," she said. "The doctor says I must have a course of slimming, and now you won't let me. I think that's brutal of you."
He took her in his arms.
"My darling," he replied, "I love you so much that I can't bear to lose an ounce of you."—London Tit-Bits Magazine.

Home Heating Hints

By John Barclay
Heating Expert

Have Your Furnace Cleaned and Inspected Now Before the Cold Weather Comes Along.

HERE'S a straight money-saving tip: Before starting your heating plant this fall, be sure it's thoroughly vacuum cleaned. It is one of the greatest precautions you can take to insure its most economical operation during the winter ahead. When the heating surfaces are covered with as little as one-sixteenth of an inch of soot (which acts as an insulator against heat, being five times as effective as asbestos) it wastes fully one-quarter of every ton of coal you burn! What's more, a furnace caked with dirt and dust won't deliver nearly as much heat as a clean furnace will.

Call in a competent service man now and arrange for a thorough vacuum cleaning of your furnace. He will do the job without muss or inconvenience.

While he's doing that, have him check up the whole heating system from flue to ashpit—guard against any possible failure of the plant after cold weather sets in. I know you'll find the cost is little compared with the staggering cost of the fuel that a dirty, faulty plant is sure to waste! Every home-owner wants to save and not waste his fuel dollars!

I LEARNED TO 'BEAT' ACID INDIGESTION

ONCE LIFE WAS MISERABLE, NO APPETITE... LITTLE SLEEP... UNTIL THE DOCTOR SAID 'ALKALIZE'

BUT NOW—AT THE FIRST SIGN OF ACID-INDIGESTION I USE PHILLIPS' AND I FEEL LIKE A NEW PERSON ALMOST IMMEDIATELY!

The fastest way to "alkalize" is to carry your alkaliizer with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets—in a flat tin for pocket or purse. Then you are always ready. Use it this way. Take 2 Phillips' tablets—equal to 1 in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonfuls of liquid Phillips' from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," nausea, "over-crowding" from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid headaches," "acid breath," over-acid stomachs are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress—avoid offense to others.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS

Household Questions

Potatoes for Short Cakes.—Hot, boiled and mashed white potatoes are good in making short cakes and puddings. They not only save flour, but require less shortening.

Cleaning Enameled Sinks.—Those stubborn dark streaks which accumulate on enameled sinks and bathtubs can be removed with kerosene.

When Peeling Small Onions.—Cover small onions with hot water and let stand for a minute or two and the skins are easily removed.

Strain the Starch.—Starch used in laundering should be strained to remove all lumps that might blister when ironing.

Johnny Cake.—One cup yellow corn meal, one cup bread flour, one-third cup sugar, one and one-half cups sour milk, half teaspoon soda, half teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon salt. Mix and sift the dry ingredients twice, and gradually add the sour milk. Beat well, and bake in a shallow greased pan, in a moderate oven. WNU Service.

"Don't let old inferiority complex get you, Sammy," Brooke warned. "Lucette and I know that this play of yours will be box-office, that it will set your name in lights on Broadway. Can't you just see Mother flying across the ocean—if necessary—for the premiere? We'll all have ravishing costumes and—"

Memory side-tracked her voice. She and Lucette couldn't go to New York for the opening. Suppose she didn't get the Palm Beach job? She would have no money. She shook herself mentally.

"What an emotional gal you are, Brooke. You've gone white with excitement over what may never happen. 'Tisn't likely a break like that will come my way," Sam prophesied gloomily.

Brooke swallowed the lump in her throat. Sam mustn't suspect why she had gone white. She said in a voice drenched with mystery:

"Listen, you two, I'm getting fed-up with country life. The day after the play we'll open the apartment."

"That'll make a big hit with me, but first, unless we want to be late for Trent's party, folks, we'd better start with a hey-nonny-nonny for the big city," Sam added. "You two certainly have the million-dollar look, girls, if you are my sisters."

CHAPTER XII

Mark Trent glanced at Brooke Reyburn seated at his right in the dim Mirror room of the recently opened Supper club. Light from the illuminated table-top brought out the copper glints in her hair, the glow in her radiant eyes, and laid a pinkish sheen over the gleaming silver of her frock. Why wasn't she wearing his orchids? Doubtless the answer to that was that she preferred gardenias. Had Field sent them?

What chance had he, a man whose life had been twisted and tangled by a tragic marriage, against gay, debonair Jerry Field? None, he answered promptly, and as promptly told himself that Brooke must love him. That marriage was years behind him. Why allow the memory of it to creep back tonight when for the first time in days his mind had been free of the haunting vision of Lola as he had seen her last?

He forced his thoughts from the past to observe his guests. The rhinestone straps of Daphne Field's blossom-pink satin frock scintillated with rainbow sparks with every movement of her body. Lucette was adorable in a fluffy white and gold thing which accentuated her rich brunette coloring. Sam was observing the crowd through narrowed eyes; Jerry Field was talking in a low voice to Lucette. Jed Stewart was on the other side of Brooke.

The orchestra glided into a rhythmic invitation. The diners sprang to their feet. Old men slipped an arm about women who snuggled. Young men slipped an arm about women who laughed; tough men planted well-groomed hands on the enameled backs of women who stumbled. One couple kissed lingeringly as they passed. Lover's eyes sought lover's eyes; white hands clung; hushed voices questioned. Jerry Field and Lucette left the table. Sam groaned and held out his hand to Daphne.

"Come on, let's get it over. I suppose you'd like to step?"

"Of course I would, martyr!" She slipped a white arm about his neck. "Nothing unsteady about her tonight," Mark thought. He pushed into the background the memory of the night he had had to steady her to the car. He had liked her, she had been amusing, but he had not invited her out after that. She had taken little wine tonight, Lucette had barely touched hers, Brooke had refused it. Now her eyes were following her brother. Was she worried about Daphne's influence on Sam?

He watched her, watched the throbbing pulse in her throat which made him think of the beat of tiny wings against bars.

As if she felt his intense concentration on her, Brooke looked at him with questioning eyes. Mark smiled in response.

"Did you know that I was thinking of you? I was hoping that you were not worrying about Sam and Daphne. If you are, don't."

"Thanks, I'm not. If that were all I had on my mind, my heart would be so light that it would be bumping against the ceiling like a runaway balloon."

"What is troubling you? Can't I help?"

"No, thanks. No!"

"That was emphatic, almost as if you were afraid of me. Care to dance?"

Brooke motioned toward the couples packed in so close they could barely move.

"You don't call that dancing, do you? But do dance yourself. You must know every attractive girl here. You have risen to bow at two minute intervals ever since we arrived at this table. I'm just being noble, setting you free to dance with someone else."

"Thanks for the consideration, but the only girl with whom I care to dance is sitting at this table. You wouldn't encourage a host to leave his guest of honor, would you?"

He glanced at the gardenias on her shoulder.

"Don't you care for orchids? I should have sent violets. I know you like them. You wore them the first time we met; no, it was the second time."

"The orchids were beautiful." Brooke traced a pattern on the illuminated table-top. "Sometime I'll tell you why I didn't wear them tonight."

"Are you engaged to Field?"

She shrugged lovely shoulders and glanced up provocatively.

"You fairly gnashed that question. You are miscast in 'Islands Arise'; Sam ought to write something for you in which you could play an ogre. You've just the voice for it."

"All right. I'm an ogre. Meanwhile, how about answering that question?"

"I said that sometime I would tell you why I didn't wear the orchids; that doesn't mean tonight; it means after the play and your party. However, had I been a perfect lady, I would have said, 'Thank you billions' for the flowers long before this. Curious how accustomed we have become to thinking in billions, isn't it?"

"It's Zero Hour, Brooke."

"I don't want your thanks, I want —" Mark disciplined his stormy voice. "Remember that afternoon in Jed's office?"

"The afternoon you refused to marry me?"

"Haven't you forgotten that?"

"There are some things one doesn't forget."

"Then here is something to put beside it in your memory book. Will you marry me, Brooke?"

She looked up with startled eyes, then laughed.

"That proposal—if it is a proposal?"

"It is."

"Has all the fire and ardor of a silent policeman?"

"Shall I give a demonstration of fire and ardor?"

"No! Of course not! Don't look at me as if you were trying to see the wheels of my mind go round."

"I hadn't gone much deeper than your eyes. Have you never been told that you have beautiful eyes? You haven't answered my question. Will you marry me?"

The orchestra was playing a soft swaying accompaniment to a baritone voice singing before the microphone:

"I only love one and that one is you,
And that one is you."
There was a burst of applause from the dancers.

Mark reminded:

"You haven't answered my question, Brooke."

Her eyes were brilliant with anger as they met his.

"I answered it the second time you refused to marry me. Perhaps you have forgotten that. I haven't."

Mark crushed back a mad impulse to kiss her contemptuous lips until she went limp in his arms. Repression sent the dark color to his face.

"No, I haven't forgotten that you said that you wouldn't marry me if I were the only man in the world, that divorced men left you cold."

She laid her hand on his sleeve. "I was sorry the moment I said that. Really I was. Please forget it."

The maitre d'hotel stopped at the table. He glistened from the top of his sleek black head to his patent leather shoes. He looked Italian with a streak of Turk; he spoke American with a French accent.

"Good evening, Mr. Trent. Glad to see you here, sir."

"How are you, Franchot? This crowd looks like prosperity back to stay."

"Business has been good ever since we opened. We had so many reservations for this evening we had to reinforce the staff of waiters and bus-boys. I don't like strange help in a jam like this, but what else could we do?"

The lights in the room dimmed. The dancers returned to their tables. The singer in her glittering sequins stepped to the stage. The orchestra leader nestled his violin under his chin, laid his fingers on the strings and drew his bow with a flourishing sweep. The spotlight traveled about the room, whitening faces, setting rhinestones on a shoulder-strap a gleam, brightening already too bright eyes, striking rainbow fire from the jewels on the breast of a grande dame. It lingered at a table.

Brooke gripped Mark's arm. She leaned close, whispered:

"Quick! Where the light is! The waiter! He's the man who ran through my room!"

Behind the scenes in the Club House theater, Brooke, as property woman, checked her list for the last time. Every article which the characters would need to take to the stage was present and accounted for. Almost time for the curtain. If only her heart wouldn't pound so. It shook her body. But hadn't her body shaken with excitement whenever she had seen Sam act? He was coming. He was almost as white as the shirt-front of his evening clothes, his eyes were like flames as he stepped beside her.

"Just had a cable from Mother wishing me luck. It's zero hour, Brooke. Locate the producer and manager out front. Watch 'em. If they go out after the first act and don't come back, the play's washed up; if they sit through the second, it's got a chance; if they come back for the third, boy!" He turned to Jerry Field who was like a stranger in his make-up.

"Go on to that stage, Jerry, and whang the ball!"

Field nodded to Brooke before he disappeared into the wings. Should she wish Sam luck, his sister wondered? Better not.

The stage was cleared. Lucette, Daphne and Jerry Field went on and took their places. Sam was in the wings! Jed was at the switchboard! The curtain man was waiting for his signal! Sam raised his hand. The house dimmed. He wagged with two fingers. Jed brought up his lights. The orchestra stopped playing. Another motion of Sam's hand and the curtain rose slowly. Brooke's heart parked in her throat, running on high.

Lucette waited for the greeting of applause to quiet before, without a trace of nervousness, she spoke her first line. Sam nodded approval, frowned as Daphne answered shakily. Brooke couldn't see the stage, but she could hear the voices. Jed Stewart was red and perspiring under the responsibility of getting the actors on and off. Once as he passed her he whispered:

"Has the New York producer come?"

He nodded. "Second row, center. Sleek blond fella, with a grand marcelle." He caught Sam's eyes glaring at them and disappeared.

Every sentence moved the play forward, unflatteringly. Jerry Field had been on and off before Mark Trent, in his blue lounge coat, appeared to make his first entrance. As he approached the wings, his eyes, smiling, disconcertingly intent, met and held Brooke's and set the blood tingling in her cheeks.

The rehearsal last night had been so hectic he had had time only to tell her that Jed Stewart had left the Supper club to report about the waiter to Inspector Harrison. In the morning paper she had seen a statement that the bandit in the Hunt filling station case was being trailed to Canada. Of course she hoped that he would be caught, but it was a relief to know that he was far away from what newspapers would call the scene of his crime.

She could hear Mark Trent's voice, faintly ironic. It was her cue to start the phonograph which was to produce a song as if sung in the street below.

"In the gloaming, oh my darling, Think not bitterly of me."

The sweetness and fervor of the man's voice brought a terrifying ache to Brooke's throat, a burning beneath her eyelids, as with the small machine in her hands she walked away to give the effect of music fading in the distance.

"It was best to leave you thus, dear,

Best for you and best for me."

The last word thinned into silence. Mark Trent's cue.

Fall Fashion Parade

BE THE first to wear the new

Fall fashions in your group—let Sew-Your-Own help you to step right out in front, in the parade of new Fall Fashions. To-day's trio gives you wide choice. Your first occasion frock if you are young and slim is a good looking basque model; for run-around a pretty yoke model that is as easy to make as it is to wear; and if you are full bosomed a jabot model that takes away inches.

The Popular Basque Dress.

If you are twenty or thereabouts, you'll adore this pretty basque dress with its flaring skirt. The slim wasp waist and short puffed sleeves above a swing skirt are as young as the morning. Have it in a pretty dark print banded in velvet ribbon for every afternoon festivity. It's a dress that you'll wear all through the winter.

Yoke-Style House Frock.

Every woman will be quick to see the advantages of this frock, in style and wearability. The round

Uncle Phil Says:

Or at Least a Philosopher

It would require an angel to live under a system in which all things are held in common.

No man picks his company to any great extent. Circumstances force it upon him.

We sometimes wonder if a pugilistic champion could stand three days of haying.

"A word from the wise" is too often boring.

When a young man who has a girl rents a safety deposit box, he's got a hope chest.

They Can't Follow Rules

Most people who are in jail are there because of defective judgment—on their part.

Solon wasn't so smart. He said "Reprove thy friend privately; commend him publicly." Reprove thy friend privately and thou'll have none. We don't reprove our friends; we love 'em.

The resolution hardest to keep: To hold your tongue.

yokey buttons at front and gives a fresh, young look to this design. Best of all, it is cut in one piece from neck to hem so that you can make it in practically no time at all. The waistline is darted for snug fit. You'll look and feel years younger in this model—wear it 'round the house and for afternoon, too.

Look Slim and Sleek.

The newest fashions give you a slim, sleek look even if you are not blessed with a svelte figure. The jabot model in the illustration is designed to make even the woman who is a bit on the plump side look sleek and inches slimmer. Make this dress in one of the new thin wools and see how you'll stand out in your crowd as a fashion leader.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1257 is designed for sizes 12 to 40. Size 14 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material and 11 yards of ribbon to trim.

Pattern 1380 is designed for sizes 34 to 48. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1373 is designed for sizes 34 to 50. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 54 inch material and ¾ yards of 39 inch material for jabot in contrast.

Lesson Sermon Of Christian Science

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, October 10, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death" (Rom. 8:2). Other Bible citations will include: "For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord; walk as children of light: . . . Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. . . Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light" (Eph. 5: 8, 10, 11, 14).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "All reality is in God and His creation, harmonious and eternal. . . Therefore the only reality of sin, sickness, or death is the awful fact that unrealities seem real to human, erring belief, until God strips off their disguise. They are not true, because they are not of God" (p. 472).

Dr. Albert J. Newlin, head of the Ricard Memorial Observatory, Santa Clara University, predicts that the nation in general will have "a wet and severe winter" this year.

He bases his prophecy on sun spots which recently became visible. He says there have been four pronounced groups of spots on widely scattered portions of the sun.

DEMONSTRATE POWER OF MIND OVER MATTER

San Jose State Leader Says Women Are Superior In Games Requiring Skill

Brains, not brawn, make women superior athletes, according to Dr. Irene Palmer, new head of the women's physical education department at San Jose State College.

"Men excel in sports which require endurance and strength, but women prove their superiority in games which require skill, finesse, and brains," she stated recently.

Co-eds are either becoming home bodies, or have become inoculated with the spirit of equality of the sexes, for the trend is away from group games to games which can be played in competition with men, says Dr. Palmer. Badminton and tennis courts are being used more frequently at private homes, and archery is increasing in popularity.

Formerly the head of women's physical education at the University of Southern California, Dr. Palmer notes a decided trend toward individual sports in San Jose.

"Classes which stress individuality such as archery, tennis, badminton and social dancing are crowded. Students here evidently can not get enough of individual activity," the educator believes.

Officer Discusses Safety Measures

The students of the Jefferson Union High School enjoyed a realistic talk given by Lieutenant Caserly of the San Francisco Fire Department, Thursday of last week.

He said that "fire was the result of someone's irresponsibility, someone's carelessness. The spark, the light, the cigarette, are all to be carefully watched as they are very dangerous and can cause great fires."

"If a fire occurs and you are among a mob of people, never rush or get excited. It is unnecessary and will only make matters worse. The main thing is to keep cool. The firemen will help as much as they can if those who are involved will help by not becoming wild."

Caserly showed the students a group of interesting slides, which told of the training of firemen and the advantages they have gained as the years progressed.
